What does the goddess mean to the modern woman?

Welcome priestess, you call and I am here. I wish to speak to you about the relevance of the goddess energy on the planet at the time of awakening. As the goddess of love, my relevance never wanes, it is eternal and it brings life and renews the bonds and vows we make with each other in living life through each other and with each other. It is a never ending story that has no beginning and no end, it is the eternal dance that we play with each other in the name of the heart.

The temple has once again thrown open its doors and provides a place not only of remembrance, but renewal of the soul. For to approach love in a different way is what is being given as a message to both women and men, for Aphrodite as goddess was the bringer of men to the sacred place where they communed with the goddess in the sacred dance of love. The women who channeled the energy were my priestesses, but the men who came to the temples were expecting an experience far beyond that found with their partners or the women who sold their bodies in the streets. Aphrodite and Venus and every goddess representation of love, has spoken of the loftier higher ideals of a sacred enchanted experience with a spiritual realm that sexuality provides them in the act of reverence of man with deity. It has always been so. Today is no different, and the message is being delivered once again by people like yourself to firstly the women who may hold the higher vibration of love and it is in opening your own hearts to the sacred expression of love, that the men will come for they are drawn into the vortex of the heart energy of woman as it spirals out to them. They admire the body and they want the sex, but it is the heart energy that is the silent attraction that pulls them inward. They seek an experience greater than the physical as much as women do, they have always been nurtured at the breast the woman, and returned to a place of safety and nurturance that came from their boyhood at the breast of their mother. And they return once again to suckle in the safety and total acceptance of the heart energy which is unconditional and accepting of all. The nearest they can get is in the arms of the woman, but they are unaware of the greater expanse of openness and allowing that comes in the expanded heart space of the higher vibration of love.

It is true that the two energies come together to express the sacred keys of love and the transmission of higher knowledge and advancement of the very civilisation that you grow, that is expressed through the sacred dance of love.

The temples of ancient times served a purpose and that was to allow the energy of the goddess to be experienced in the sacred offering of love making in order that the vibration and energy of the goddess could be experienced in the arms and body and sex of a woman. She became the vessel for deity to be experienced by man. And they came. In the true expression of the sexual vibration only the most highly trained priestesses were allowed to receive the transmissions. They contained an elevated expression of the codes and they were codes of light that came through the body channelled as such in the most sacred sacrament. And it was offered to the highest men in the land, the kings and rulers and those who were similarly anointed to be ready to receive the information as it was delivered and passed down. When you read of the ancient rites of hieros gamos which was the renewal of fertility rights each year, the high priestess of the temple was in service of the goddess and she came to join with the king in an ancient fertility rite that ensured the fertility of the land and the continued salvation of the people. The information that was transmitted through the holy and sacred act of sex was given to those who could most benefit in using the keys of knowledge and light vibration in the furtherance of the prosperity of the land and the community at large.

What is being remembered today is that the ability for every woman and man to come together in a sacred act of sexual relating is available to them for the keys transmit the codes of enlightenment and higher knowledge that are required for the bringing of the light to humanity. It is a dance of energies and they are alchemically activated when the intention and understanding of the individuals involved is awake and aware of the importance of the sacred dance that is being enacted when they come together with their bodies in love. Love is the highest vibration that is available to be expressed through the physical body and when it is similarly joined with another of similar vibratory resonance, then exponential resonance exudes and an experience of transmutation occurs. The two energies stream codes of light both into the bodies of those involved, but also awaken ancient memory codes that were wired into the bodies and brains of the race and have been lying dormant for aeons while the evolution of the species caught up. It is only when the pure light of source energy can be channeled through the individual that the keys of awakened vibration can be once again channeled through the body and infused into the consciousness.

There is such an awakened awareness around tantric sexuality at the moment because individuals are seeking a higher sacred experience above the physical vibration that allows for procreation of the species, but holds nothing of the sacred alignment that transmutes the baser cellular structure of the body and opens the very physiology of the body as an antenna to receive a signal that is the key that turns on the light to awaken the whole human race. For those who are waking up right now, they will find that sexuality is the key that turns the lock to awaken them to the new world. Creating heaven on earth has been spoken of for millennia. This information priestess you will write about and make available on the planet once again and you ask about what it is that you will write, well this is the information that you as priestess of the sacred feminine held in Atlantis and through which you were gifted to transmit. You were a power station of light encoded information and you emitted this message through entering the vibration of such pure and high intensity into the crystalline structure that it then joined in with the other energy knowledge sources and sent out a message which held the purest light activation codes for the whole population.

This is again what you will be doing. It is not by chance that you are calling on Aphrodite to open the temples again and asking the women to come and remember what it was to hold the vibration of the enlightened ones. As women we are able to hold this vibration in the body and through the heart chamber, we can once again activate men by piercing their hearts with the live vibration which contains the encoded light keys. It is pure source energy channeled through the one vessel of womanhood. This is why the salvation of western civilisation and the entire planet is available through women. They alone are able to hold this vibration because their hearts are more open than men. Once men are aware of what can be gained through accessing the secret knowledge and wisdom available through the heart chakra, then they too will be happy to place women back into a position of authority of energy holding that they have always had. Your records will speak in the future of the time of darkness that was held over the land and the awakening that came with the renewal of the light encoded information onto the land by the species of the woman. This time is one of reawakening of the ancient knowledge and this is your task beloved priestess to open the temples in the minds and hearts of all by being the one who holds the vibration and sacred keys of awakening.
